Fabrizio Di Amato - Founder, Chairman and main shareholder of MAIRE

Fabrizio Di Amato is the Founder, Chairman and controlling Shareholder of MAIRE, a multinational industrial group active in 50 countries across five continents in sustainable technologies, through its subsidiary NextChem, and integrated engineering and construction services for the energy transition. He graduated in Political Science at La Sapienza University of Rome and in Chemical Engineering ad honorem at the Politecnico di Milano.

He started his entrepreneurial activity at the age of nineteen, with three employees. He built up the MAIRE Group over four decades, through a process of progressive internal growth as well as acquisitions of national and international companies, including Fiat Engineering (2004), Tecnimont (2005), Tecnimont India (2007), Stamicarbon (2009), KT (2010), NextChem (founded in 2018), Conser and MyRemono (2023), Hydep, GasCoTec and APS (2024).

As of today, MAIRE employs nearly 10,000 people - supported by around 50,000 resources involved in its projects - in 50 subsidiaries worldwide.

Fabrizio Di Amato is also Chairman of the Fondazione MAIRE, which aims at preserving and exploiting the Group's historic archival heritage as well as training young talents and the humanist engineers of tomorrow, enabling them to contribute to the energy and digital transitions.

Italian Industrial Association System

Fabrizio Di Amato was former President of Animp (Associazione Nazionale di Impiantistica Industriale) from 2007 to 2011. In 2008 he founded Federprogetti, the Italian Plant Engineering Federation, to create a single entity for engineering and contracting, where he served as president until May 2015. He is member of the General Council of trade groups Unindustria and Assolombarda, and member of the board of Assonime, the association of Italy's publicly listed companies. He is Counsellor of the Embassy to the Holy See of the Sovereign Military Order of Malta.
